CONCLUDES A WEEK IN BARBADOS OF HISTORIC INTERNATIONAL DIALOGUE ON THE CLIMATE EMERGENCY

Bridgetown, Barbados, April 30, 2024. – The Inter-American Court of Human Rights convened in Barbados from April 22 to 25, 2024, for the first week of its 166th Regular Session. During this week, took place the Public Hearing of the Advisory Opinion on “Climate Emergency and Human Rights”.

The Court heard presentations from States, international organizations, scientists, academia, activists, and civil society. These interventions represent only a fraction of the 265 amicus curiae briefs written by participants worldwide. Additionally, the Court celebrated the International Seminar on “Impact and Challenges of International Human Rights Law” and a set of official visits in the island. The main events took place at the University of the West Indies, Cave Hill Campus.

The President of the Court, Judge Nancy Hernández López, emphasized that this is the Advisory Opinion with the highest participation in the history of the Court, reflecting the interest that the issue of the climate emergency summons from different actors from various parts of the world. An openness and dialogue that characterize the advisory opinions of the Inter-American Court.
